Developmental Sports League Volunteer

The Opportunity

Playworks Developmental Sports Leagues give kids the opportunity to learn a sport in an environment focused on participation, skill building, teamwork, and fun. As a Developmental Sports League Volunteer, you'll work alongside Playworks staff to help kids practice skills, participate in games, support their teammates, and build important life skills through sports.

You don't need to be an expert in the sport. Enthusiasm and a willingness to jump in matter much more.

Time Commitment

League schedules vary by sport, season, and school. We'll share the full schedule and commitment before you sign up for a placement.

Depending on the opportunity, volunteers may participate once a week, twice a month, or once a month.

Where & Who

Developmental Sports Leagues take place at Playworks partner schools and other designated program locations. We'll match volunteers based on program needs, location, and availability.

You'll work alongside Playworks staff who are responsible for leading the league. A Playworks Program Manager will be your primary contact for scheduling and questions.

Important Boundaries

Playworks staff remain responsible for program facilitation, student supervision, behavior management, injuries, significant conflicts, and communication with schools and families. Volunteers must follow staff direction, remain within their assigned role, never be alone one-on-one with a student, never escort a student to the bathroom, and immediately bring injuries or concerns to Playworks staff.

What You Can Expect From Us

We'll provide the program plan, equipment, direction, and support. You bring your energy and willingness to participate. The goal isn't to create the next professional athlete. It's to help kids learn, play, be part of a team, and have a great experience.
